The contract shall renew automatically for a further year on each succeeding July 1 unless either party has given notice to terminate in writing on or before April 1 of any year.

ARTICLE II

The consultancy services provided by JMBA shall comprise routine services for a monthly retainer fee and non-routine services which will be billed separately.

1. ROUTINE SERVICES shall include:

ARTICLE IV

On request, JMBA shall provide non-routine services described in Article II above. Such additional services shall be reimbursed at daily rates of $3,000 for Mr. J.M. Beggs and $1,500 for each of the other Partners.

ARTICLE V

BACKGROUND:

Lithotripsy is a medical technology which utilizes ultra sound techniques to image calculi in the kidney and ureter. It has been used regularly in hospitals since 1983 as a non-invasive technique for the elimination of kidney stones. Recent improvements have made the treatment less cumbersome through the elimination of immersion tanks and the reduction in size of the equipment.

It is now possible to augment the ultra sound equipment to image other elements of the human body, such as heart, lungs, brain, bones, and blood vessels, to monitor and diagnose conditions over time. NASA has identified ultra sound imaging as the preferred method to monitor human physiology during extended space flights, and there is now an opportunity to combine commercially developed lithotripsy equipment with NASA techniques for configuring space medical equipment for space applications, the end objective being compact, multi-functional medical equipment for use during long duration space missions.

ISSUE:

An unsolicited proposal was submitted to NASA, JSC in August by an Atlanta based company, with manufacturing facilities in Columbia, MD, to study the conversion of its newly developed state-of-the-art lithotripter into a Multi Tissue Ultrasonic Imaging System (MTUIS) and to build a prototype. The initial one year $750K contracted effort would be followed by a testing and evaluation phase on the ground and the eventual fabrication and flight test of a space qualified model.

RECOMMENDATION:

It is respectfully recommended that the Committee consider the identification of this MTUIS project as one to be given special attention in the NASA FY 1993 Life Sciences program, and direct NASA to begin with the first phase of the project as an example of the utilization of NASA and commercially based technology for the benefit of space flight and commercial medical practices.

Dear Mr. Beggs:

I appreciate your recent note regarding the proposal for "Research In Multi-tissue Ultrasonic Imaging." I have determined that this proposal is being evaluated by a senior researcher in my Medical Sciences Division. I am sure that you are aware of the extensive use of ultrasonic technology for cardiac and bone studies within NASA Life Sciences. The proposal by Southern Technologies Diversified may provide new applications of potential interest to Life Sciences, particularly as we begin the long duration missions associated with Space Station Freedom. Our evaluation should be completed soon. Thanks for your expressed interest in our research capabilities.

Hope you are well and that I'll see you soon.

Sincerely,

Director, Space and Life Sciences

GOLDIN ANNOUNCES CHANGES IN NASA ORGANIZATION TO FOCUS AND STRENGTHEN PROGRAMS AND MANAGEMENT

WASHINGTON -- Daniel S. Goldin today announced a series of structural changes at NASA to improve management and bring focus to programs that are essential to America's future.

"Of all the agencies in government, NASA has a unique responsibility to invest in the future to ensure there is hope and opportunity, to keep America on the cutting edge of technology," Goldin said.

"Today, I am announcing a series of structural changes to better focus NASA's programs, to streamline how we do business so we can meet the challenges ahead," Goldin said.

In preparation to today's announcement, Goldin said over the past six months he has traveled to NASA centers, visiting with hundreds of employees, worked with the Red & Blue Teams, met with CEOs of America's top companies, met with small and disadvantaged companies, small entrepreneurial companies, and reached out into minority and women-owned companies.

He has traveled abroad to meet with leaders in space policy, met personally with nearly 200 members of Congress and analyzed major reports such as the Augustine Report, the Paine Commission Report, and the Rogers Commission Report. He has also reached out to academia and the science community.

"The past six months I've reached deep into NASA to listen to the hopes and dreams of employees. I've listened to concerns expressed by America's leaders outside the agency," Goldin said.

"If there is universal agreement on one point it's that NASA cannot afford to fail, that it must be the preeminent technological leader of the world," Goldin said. "NASA must reach for the stars and bring back to America dual-use technology to improve life on Earth."

To achieve its goals, Goldin announced the following structural and managerial changes at NASA:

SPACE STATION FREEDOM - Strengthening the focus of management of Space Station Freedom (SSF) is of the highest priority for NASA. In a September 17, 1992 speech, Goldin said he was "taking steps to ensure NASA's top talent is working on this program."

* * Marty Kress will become Deputy Program Manager for Policy and Management, responsible for strengthening cooperation with the space station user community, international partners, and the private sector. Marty's previous position was Assistant Administrator for Legislative Affairs.

"Marty Kress is one of NASA's best and brightest rising young 'stars,' who has successfully helped me steer the agency through difficult budget deliberations on Capitol Hill," Goldin said. "His talent is now needed for even greater challenges, to pull together, coordinate, and integrate the scientific and commercial communities so they take full advantage of the opportunities Space Station Freedom."

Marty Kress' appointment will allow Dick Kohre to focus his skills on the day-to-day development and construction of SSF.

* * Mary Kerwin, Director Liaison Division, will become Acting Assistant Administrator for Legislative Affairs.

- MORE -

* * Tom Campbell, formerly Comptroller, will become the Chief Financial Officer for SSF to help ensure SSF keeps within its budget estimates.

"Tom Campbell is recognized as the strongest financial officer at the agency," Goldin said. "He's NASA's top talent, who will be responsible for keeping a watchful eye on the budget and schedule."

* * Gary Allison, who was Deputy Comptroller, will become Acting Comptroller.

SCIENCE & TECHNOLOGY -- NASA, which is renown for its science, must strengthen its outreach to the science community to improve the integration and coordination of research.

* * Len Fisk will be promoted to the new position of Chief Scientist for NASA. Len's previous position was Associate Administrator for Space Science and Applications.

"Len is one of NASA's most brilliant and outstanding scientists," Goldin said. "His formidable challenge will be to aggressively work with the scientific and engineering community to fully involve them in our research goals.

"He will be responsible for forging a strong bond with the directors of research and development in corporate America to ensure NASA is getting the very best technology in all our science missions," Goldin said.

"Len, because of his outstanding communication abilities, will also be instrumental in explaining to the public the importance of NASA's research to improve life on Earth and inspire opportunity and hope," Goldin said.

EARTH AND PLANETARY SCIENCE — The Office of Science and Space Applications will be divided into two parts to bring focus to the programs.

* * Shelby Tilford will become Acting Associate Administrator of Mission to Planet Earth. He previously was Director of Earth Sciences.

"Mission to Planet Earth is more than a duty, it's a moral commitment to future generations," Goldin said. "We must understand our environment -- separating natural from human causes and effects -- so policy makers can make decision on hard data, not suppositions."

* * Wes Huntress, previously Director of Solar Systems Exploration, will become Acting Associate Administrator of Planetary Science and Astrophysics.

"We must build more spacecraft that are smaller, faster, and cheaper," Goldin said. "By studying our solar system and the universe, we will be able to better understand Earth's environment and its future, and see if life developed other place."

AERONAUTICS -- Goldin announced in a recent speech that NASA needs a better balance of programs between subsonics, NASP hypersonics, and high speed civil transport. In addition, NASA needs to develop a strategic plan to ensure we have the proper facilities to keep America's aerospace industry the world's leader. The Office of Aerospace and Space Technology will be divided to provide focus.

* * Pete Petersen will become Special Assistant to the Administrator to develop a comprehensive and integrated long-term plan that identifies the critical facilities for aeronautics and space. He was Associate Administrator for Associate Administrator.

"As the Augustine Report points out, NASA's infrastructure is critical to meeting its mission goals," Goldin said.

"NASA must develop an integrated facilities plan, in coordination with other government agencies and private industry, to construct world class facilities for aeronautics and space."

"We must avoid duplication in government and industry to achieve maximum results and stretch taxpayer's dollars," Goldin said.

* * Cecil Rosen, who was Director for Aeronautics, will become Acting Associate Administrator for the Office of Aeronautics.

* * Gregory Reck will become Acting Associate Administrator for the new office of Advanced Concepts & Technology.

~~* * Courtney Stadd will become Acting Deputy Associate Administrator for the new office of Advanced Concepts & Technology.~~

"NASA needs to attract and work with America's greatest researchers and entrepreneurs in academia and industry," Goldin said. "This office will push America's technological frontiers. It will be the catalyst for innovation and commercialization of technology, for transferring technology to create jobs and opportunity."

As part of the restructuring, the Office of Commercial Programs will become part of this new division.

~~* * Jack Mannix, who was Assistant Administrator for the Office of Commercial Programs, will become Associate General Counsel for Intellectual Property.~~

RUSSIAN PROGRAMS

* * Sam Keller, Associate Administrator for Russian Programs will be on Special Assignment.

"Because of Sam Keller's talent and hard work, NASA has been able to sign far-reaching contracts with Russia in record speed," Goldin said. "He now will be moving on to new and exciting challenges."
